Removing the Masks ~ unveiling your TRUE self

As telecommunications and the 'information age' flourish, awareness and communion wane. More stimuli intrude. Life becomes busy-ness. The only quiet time is during your sleep, and even that is prey to restless dreams. This is what you call life, yet it is a travesty of life. It is life without breathe, without energy, without intimacy. It is an attack on the senses and a violation of the spirit. It is life without heart, without rhythm. Spirit is the ego's capacity to touch the soul and it is the primary implant within your consciousness that tempers the ego.

How honest are you willing to be? Are you willing to be with your feelings and stand in truth in every action and reaction? In order to make a choice you must be able to clearly articulate what you desire, say what you need, speak your truth and be firm in your commitment to your own healing (healing is letting go of fear). Only through your commitment to honor yourself will you begin to allow the MASKS that hold you hostage to truly reveal YOU. All masks must be peeled away if you are to stand face-to-face with truth. Truth is the temple to LOVE, and the sheathing that has kept you from your awakening will finally fall away as you allow the many layers to reveal your authentic reflection.

If you wish a humble validation, allow yourself to peel away the ideas that seem to frame your belief about who you are. The simple beauty and majesty of life can be found only in allowance as the cyclical rhythms of surrender transform your day-to-day reality.

Never believe that you need to sacrifice. There is no truth in sacrifice, because value has no residence in lack. Your Father Sun and Mother Moon are celebrating reunion over the next few months. The fire and shadow embraced each other fully on February 20, 2008 (the full Lunar Eclipse) and gave birth to "illuminated" thought patterns which will enable you to upgrade and reboot your body, your spirit and your evolved cranial capacity awakening the seven sensory being you are. Fully baptized through the heart of the Lion (Leo) and the Lord of the Rings (Saturn) your golden compass has been returned to each of you. Navigation of your compass is up to you and we urge you to look to the stars as the Rainbow people reflect truth to you. Let us re-remind you that the constellation Regulus acts as a regulator for evolutionary energies through Sirius and Christ Consciousness and is heaven's guardian.

Humanity's many disguises affix to your skewed vision of what you actually see versus what you think you see. What you see is programmed mind patterns or reflections of memory traces retrieved from your brain thoughts. But upgraded memory traces are the key to the evolution of the new earth and heaven concept. In other words 'heaven' is the transcended though patterns and the 'earth' are your reflections. That is what this evolution, this metamorphosis, this mystic fiction you call life is all about. The only way to change your life is to change your reality and it starts with 'thought patterns.' Remove the masks and embrace your truth. Truth cannot be learned only recognized.
